

Hi _____, it's _____ over at Premier Coin Galleries. How are you today?

Obviously, you are familiar with government seizure auctions! If not, it's when the government seizes a person's assets from time to time. For whatever reason, their loss is, without a doubt, our gain.

We often get information on the items on the list to be auctioned off. This way, we can prepare financially and have our top graders attend the auction, making each auction a fantastic success.

At the auction we attended in Miami, Florida, the hands-down absolute best situation came in the $2.50 GOLD INDIAN area. Are you familiar with that coin? The $2.50 GOLD INDIAN represented the first time a coin was designed with no raised milling, and the main devices and legends are incuse. They are actually engraved into the coin. It's a stunning piece minted from 1908-1915 and again from 1925-1929.

We picked up 34 pieces, and after endless hours of reviewing them, our graders decided they were much too strong to be considered MS-63s. They agreed to release them as borderline

MS-64s! Currently on Trends, these pristine pieces go for anywhere between $_____ to $_____ each. In the last peak market, they were actively auctioned in the neighborhood of $_____ and $_____ each.

This is, without a doubt, the best opportunity anyone can find in the market. We did so well at the government seizure sale that we have decided to release these pieces at only $_____ each, with a maximum of 3 per person, which is a steal. How many can you handle?
